NRA OFFICIALS VISIT CAMERON WEDNESDAY

Representing the compliance division for NRA two officials of the administration were Cameron visitors Wednesday.

Ernest L. Tutt, executive assistant of the NRA in Houston Compliance Division, was accompanied here by Frank A. Boutwell, resident field adjuster. Mr. Boutwell will shortly establish headquarters in Waco to serve the territory of Cameron, Temple, Marlin and Hillsboro. Establishment of a compliance division office in Waco will greatly expedite complaints.

Mr. Boutwell will check complaints. He points out that where an employer violates the code provisions applying to wages and hours that there is no authorized method of adjustment except to require full restitution of back wages or overtime pay. Some back wages have already been collected in Cameron for employees. A total of $40,000 has been collected in this state.

The compliance division, Mr. Tutt pointed out, functions to co-operate with industry and business to get full compliance with various NRA codes. The method to enforce compliance is receiving complaints alleging violations. There will be no hesitancy in making investigations now that the force has been greatly enlarged.

Maury Hughes Noted for Audacity Asks Governorship

Man Who Won Captaincy On Fields of France Still Good Scrapper

BY HARRY BENGE CROZIER

Something of a storybook soldier was dashing young Maury Hughes—just 25—when he came home from France in 1919, wearing the two bars of a Captain and France's Croix de Guerre because he had been audacious enough one October day to rally a little group of Texas boys and wipe out a German machine gun nest. The Thirty-Sixth Division was getting its baptism of German artillery and machine gun fire that fall day in 1918. Troops were advancing on either side of his outfit when the 24-year-old Dallas Lieutenant went into action. For the act of audacity he won the decorations and the captaincy.

Young men who served with him in Company E of the 144th infantry shouted his praises when they campaigned for him as a candidate for Dallas County District Attorney in 1920. They called him the best captain in the whole army.

"And why do you say that this young man is the greatest Captain of them all?" a veteran Dallas lawyer asked one of them.

"Because," was the reply, "good Captains would say to their men, 'Go over the top and get 'em!' But Hughes would say: 'Come on, you so-and-sos, let's get 'em.'"

The Hughes manner as exemplified that day in France has had other stages than a battlefield. As a District Attorney and on the defending side of the docket, in the rough-and-tumble theater of county politics and in the more august settings of State and national Democratic conventions Maury Hughes has had a way of being somewhat audacious.

Counted Good Scrapper

No man has engaged the former Dallas County District Attorney in courtroom, on political rostrum, or in the family jousts of smoke-filled rooms where good fellows congregate without counting him a worthy foe. He's a scrapper in the fashion of a terrier who fights without malice. He's a fast-moving nimble-witted person who, in street-corner language, "can dish it out and take it, too."

The Hughes penchant for politics had a setback early in his career, but not for long did he nurse the bruises of defeat applied by the order that was the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in 1922. In 1920 and still only 26 years old, Hughes awakened keen enthusiasm in a successful campaign for the office of District Attorney. He carried into the courtroom the same vigor and fire that had characterized his campaigning and prosecutions conducted by Hughes was dramatic sessions in which the state won some spectacular victories. During his two years' incumbency there occurred the celebrated Jackson street postoffice robbery, in which a postal employee was shot to death. Hughes worked up the evidence in the case and directed the prosecution of Albert Rowan, member of a prominent Dallas family, who was assessed a penalty of fifty years in the penitentiary in a trial at Abilene. Rowan was charged with planning and directing the robbery.

The Hughes Audacity—

Trial of one of the defendants in that robbery provided opportunity for another piece of typical Hughes drama. George Gaines, accused as one of the robbers, had been arrested in possession of a .45-caliber pistol. The slain postoffice employee had been struck with a .45-caliber bullet. Firearm experts had testified that the bullet which had killed the man could not have been fired from a shell that would fit the gun. Hughes removed the bullet from that particular kind of shell and before an astonished courtroom confounded the experts when he pulled the trigger and the shell exploded.

The Hughes political star apparently was rising and the young prosecuting attorney was elected president of the County and District Attorneys' Association of Texas. Then all of a sudden came the year the owls were so bad. Hughes was a candidate for a second term when people began to have knowledge of the presence of the Ku Klux Klan as a factor in politics. It sponsored candidates for the governorship and was charged with electing a United States Senator. It has been charged that Hughes himself was a member of the order. At any rate he didn't get the call and Shelby Cox took office as District Attorney in January of 1923.

In Private Practice

Maury Hughes went into the private practice of law in partnership with Ted Monroe and they have been outstandingly successful. Criminal trials always counted a good show in Texas courtrooms have added dramatic interest when Maury Hughes and Ted Monroe face court and jury. Their ardor sometimes has tried a court's patience and fines sometimes have rebuked their zeal. In the years that have elapsed since 1923 the firm has built up a general practice.

It probably was in the cards that Maury Hughes should gravitate back into the arena of politics. He had a flair for contests that could not be destroyed by a single defeat nor completely appeased in the practice of law. He came back into politics as the champion of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and campaigned for Alfred E. Smith as the Democratic nominee for president in 1928. When Smith was defeated Hughes kept on campaigning for a new deal in Dallas County. It had been counted ultra-dry but in 1932 Hughes and the forces he had gathered won a complete victory over the opposition. He led the delegation that went to Houston to the State Convention to elect delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago. He was chosen as a member of the state delegation and through an outright wet acquiesced in the instructions for submission of the prohibitions amendment rather than for outright repeal.

Speaks at Chicago

Along with other Texans, Hughes had been a supporter of John N. Garner for President. At Chicago he was named as the Texas member of the platform and resolutions committee and had prepared a speech to be delivered before the convention in support of submission, although personally he was for repeal. He had advanced on the platform to begin his address when word was brought that the Texas delegation had caucused and declared for repeal. Freed of the restraint imposed by a prepared speech, Hughes launched into an extemporaneous effort that was widely applauded. He advocated repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and told the great assemblage that Alfred E. Smith's defeat for the presidency was not because of his advocacy of repeal, but that he was crucified on the altar of religious intolerance.

In the State campaign that year Hughes supported the candidacy of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for Governor and headed the Dallas County delegation to the State convention at Lubbock. He was chosen chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee with the sanction of James E. Ferguson. A year later there was a break between the men when Jed C. Adams tendered his resignation as Democratic national committeeman from Texas and Hughes aspired to the place. C. C. McDonald, intimate of Ferguson and now a candidate for Governor, likewise aspired to the place of committeeman. When Vice President Garner was proposed for the place Hughes agreed to withdraw, but McDonald remained, and it was made manifest the Ferguson influence would dominate the committee. The stalemate continued when Mr. Adams withdrew his resignation.

Former Governor Ferguson himself was chosen for the place a few months ago when Mr. Adams renewed his resignation.

Resigns Chairmanship

Hughes resigned as State Chairman when he formally announced for Governor on February 6 of this year and likewise resigned as chairman of the State Recovery Board to which he had been appointed by President Roosevelt. As chairman of the recovery board, Mr. Hughes made trips to Washington and made speeches throughout the State assisting in organizing local recovery boards.

The son of Texas born parents, Maury Hughes is a native of California by accident of birth. His mother, Olive Hudson, was born in Gainesville. The family removed to California, where the Texas lawyer became a circuit judge and Maury Hughes was born June 8, 1894. Judge Hughes died while the youngest son was an infant and his mother returned to Gainesville with her three children. Subsequently she became the wife of George Young, until recently Dallas postmaster, and Maury Hughes spent his young manhood here.

His early education was obtained in Gainesville public schools. Later he attended Dallas University, Austin College at Sherman and the University of Virginia. He returned to Dallas and began the practice of law in 1916, but enlisted as a private in the army within a few months and went to France with the Thirty-Sixth Division. During his service he served in every rank from private to Captain.

When he came home from war, Hughes renewed the practice of law and in 1920 was elected District Attorney. During the same year he was married to Miss Ann Louise Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Higgins. They are the parents of two husky sons, Maury Hughes, Jr., 11, and Bob Hughes, 9. When there are no clashes to engage the Hughes mind he likes to go hunting and fishing or congregate with his own kind and talk. He owns a sheep farm out on the Northwest highway from Dallas and Hughes farm barbecues have attained wide celebration. The farm furnishes an ideal romping place, too, for the growing Hughes youngsters.

T. O. Hamilton of Pasadena, Texas, was a Cameron visitor last week. They formerly lived in Cameron and have many friends here who welcome their return visits.

E. B. Alexander of Wichita Falls were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Green for the past week end.

Make Short Work of Bank Bandits

Sheriff Walter Jones

Joe Oney, Deputy Sheriff

Bandits who would pillage in West Texas are fast learning that dealing with law and order on the Plains and in the cattle country is dangerous business. Two San Diego, Calif. men, Buster Orr and W. O. Ortega robbed the First State Bank at Allison, Wheeler county, Texas, of $200. Sheriff Walter Jones of Canadian, started on the trail immediately, carrying Deputy Joe Oney and a passenger, a man named Funston. Just inside the Oklahoma line the Sheriff's car, equipped with bullet-proof windshield and a machine gun, sighted the bandits. A running gun battle began when the bandits slightly wounded Funston, and ended eight miles later with Orr and Ortega dead. (Texas News Photos)

G-3 Users Report 43% is Too Modest —They're Getting More Extra Non-Skid Mileage Than That—But We Prefer to Be Conservative.

Yes, there's quite an uproar over our G-3 advertising. People who got the first G-3's put out—months before the public announcement—say "you're pulling your punch"—cite mileage records to prove 43% more non-skid life is an understatement. Very likely it is low—very likely the G-3 does do better—but, by speeding up to 50, jamming on brakes, every few miles day and night, in harder driving than most people do, the Goodyear test fleet established the average of 43% greater non-skid wear—and we'll stick to that figure because: That much extra safety at no extra cost is plenty to offer. If you have yet to see this amazing new Goodyear All-Weather, don't wait longer—come in today.

MY HOME TOWN

By L. J. Bowling
Gause, Texas

A small town in Central Texas, Not much for looks or size. Perhaps we're little people; All men can't be wise.

Yet I like this little place—I know most everybodys face; How old they are, where they live, The good they do and joy they give.

So I guess that we are all right; We work in daytime and sleep at night, And with anything really good We share it as a neighbor should.

Frank Vaughn who for the past sixteen years has been in California, arrived the past week for a visit with Tom Vaughn and family. Mr. Vaughn formerly lived for many years near Maysfield and has many old friends who are glad to meet him again.

Constipation Symptoms Soon Go Away After Use of Black-Draught

Mrs. S. G. Ramey, of Henryetta, Okla., writes that she has taken Thedford's Black-Draught about twenty-five years, when needed, and has "found it very good." "When I have a sour stomach and my mouth tastes bitter, and I feel listless, sluggish and tired, I will very soon have a severe headache if I don't take something. I have learned to keep off these spells by taking Thedford's Black-Draught. Very soon I am feeling fine. I feel that Black-Draught can't be beaten as a family medicine." HOME OWNING REAL WAY TO PROSPERITY

C. C. McDONALD

Houston, July 17—Real prosperity will not return until the United States becomes a nation of home owners, is the contention of C. C. McDonald, administration candidate for governor and a staunch advocate of universal home ownership.

Mr. McDonald contends that free tillable land is gone forever and, that though the federal land banks now own one-half the actual value of a family home, many of the country's finest people are homeless because they do not have the other half of the purchase price or enough to make the down payment.

In the home ownership plank in his platform, Mr. McDonald says that the most important and far-reaching policy this state could adopt would be to place within the reach of every family a home of its own, which, he says, could be done were the state to guarantee the other half of the cost of each homestead not to exceed $4000. After moving into the home, a family could, under the McDonald plan, repay the money over a long period of time at five per cent that interest. Mr. McDonald contends that there would be few, if any, defaulters, due to the fact that the payments would be less than the average family now spends for rent.

In outlining his platform in speeches throughout the state, Mr. McDonald avers that the foundation stones of his candidacy are his desires to provide opportunity for universal home ownership, equalization of the burden of taxation, repeal of the prohibition law, pensioning of the aged needy and infirm, just rights for working men and women and state aid for rural schools.

... For New and Better Refrigeration

the Coolerator

ONLY THE

has the efficient under-the-ice circulation....

A patented and exclusive process that makes for better refrigeration, assuring constant cold at all times at the lowest possible cost.

A NEW KIND OF REFRIGERATION

In other makes of ice refrigerators the air from the food chamber is taken up over the top of the ice and the cooling is accomplished by use of the four sides and top of the ice cake.

In the Coolerator only the under side of the cake is exposed and through the use of the patented Coolerator fin rack the ice melts down in long fingers, giving extra cooling surface.

For this reason the ice in the Coolerator melts only from the bottom and leaves the top of the cake practically flat so that a new block of ice can be slid in on top of the old one.

The Coolerator gives the same temperature in the food chamber whether the ice chamber is full or nearly empty. In the electric refrigerator there is the circulation of dry, stale air filled with the gasses and odors given off by the foods in an almost air-tight chamber.

The gasses and odors are absorbed by the water that makes the ice cubes. In the Coolerator, these gasses and odors are absorbed by the water from the melting ice and carried away down the drain pipe without doing any harm.

Rice Gets Plenty of Water When Gates Jam

The Gulf Coast Water Company of Bay City, Texas, bought 14,000-acre feet of water (5,000,000,000 gallons) from Lake Brownwood in a unique experiment. Lake Brownwood's flood gates were opened to allow the water to run 450 miles down the Colorado River to Wharton and Matagorda counties where it would be pumped out and used to irrigate the drought-stricken rice. Somehow the flood gates jammed and could not be shut. On July 14, more than 52,000-acre feet of water had gone from Lake Brownwood. The picture shows how far the water has receded (the dotted line being the initial water-line). (Texas News Photos.)

the tale of a dashing adventure of the Robin Hood type, who steals from the rich in order to finance his benefactors. The film deals with his supreme adventure, his love for a poor girl whom he promotes into a world-famous operatic success.

Presented by Merian C. Cooper, producer of "Chang" and "Grass," similar big successes of epic sweep, "Stingaree" is an RKO-Radio Picture which has been lavishly produced. It will have its first showing in this city soon at the Cameron Theater.

Glamorous Romance

The story is replete with romance, drama, comedy, music, heart appeal and swift action, affords both Miss Dunne and Dix superlatively colorful and glamorous roles, Dix, as the outlaw with polished manners and agreeable personality, is placed in many breath-taking situations, with every opportunity for the exercise of his ingratiating screen technique.

Miss Dunne has the role of Hilda Bouverie, a dependant girl who has a beautiful voice and who is forced to work as a servant in the home of rich relatives. Upon an errand of robbery, Stingaree sees Hilda and hears her sing and immediately falls in love with her.

Masquerading as a famous operatic impresario, he learns of her great ambition and tells her he will help her to realize it. Soon, however, he is exposed by the police and, when he sees that further subterfuge is impossible, he boldly kidnaps Hilda and carries her away on his beautiful white horse to his hide-away. There is one glorious night of music and love, he succeeds in completely winning Hilda's heart.

Their Love Endures

More exciting and romantic episodes are those which follow. In an exploit of great bravado "Stingaree" succeeds in starting Hilda on the road to fame and is himself captured by the police and sentenced to a long term in prison.

Subsequent episodes depict Hilda's rise as an operatic star in the capitals of Europe. Although she attains the heights, she is not completely happy, for she is unable to forget the lovable rogue who had made it all possible. So she determines to return to Australia in the hope of seeing him again.

From this point the story moves with ever-increasing speed, and the climax is rated one of the most surprising and satisfying that has ever been screened.

"Pains Gone," Says Lady, After She Had Taken CARDUI

In describing how her health improved after she had taken Cardui, Mrs. Ralph R. Courney, of Wytheville, Va., said: "I was run-down and suffered from pain in my side. I wanted to feel well and get rid of the pain in my side, so I sent for Cardui and began taking it. By the time I had taken three bottles of Cardui, I was feeling much better. The pains had gone. I am very glad to recommend Cardui to other young women." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. Or a bottle, at drug stores.

189 Texas Counties Now Get Drouth Relief

The above map shows the 189 Texas counties which are now on drought list prior to July 1. Those shown shaded have been added to the rolls in the last several days. The drought, heretofore confined to the western part of the state, has now penetrated to the eastern border. Only emergency counties, less than half the above, are eligible for immediate drought relief money. The secondary areas are directly in line for cash if the drought continues. Scattered rains helped the drought situation last week, and with federal aid, it is well in hand in Texas. (Texas News Photos.)
